Special Presentation

The presentation today was from a Vietnam Veteran, Robert “Bob” McClain. Bob was drafted into the Army and reported to Fort Jackson, South Carolina for basic training. During Basic, Bob was selected for Officer Candidate School and 23 weeks later graduated as a 2nd Lieutenant. Next, he learned how to parachute out of perfectly good aircraft and was awarded Jump wings. He was selected for 6 months of specialized training in the Army Special Forces. The Special Forces in Vietnam was organized into 12 man “A” teams with the duties of five primary missions: unconventional warfare (The main mission of the Green Berets is to train and lead unconventional warfare, (UW), forces, or a clandestine guerrilla force in an occupied nation), foreign internal defense, special reconnaissance, direct action, and counter-terrorism. These 12-man teams containing weapons sergeants (who can fire anything with a trigger), medics, communications sergeants (who are trained in everything from Morse code to establishing secure links with satellites).

Special Forces Camp Thien Ngon

They are self-sustaining and autonomous, speak multiple languages, and are able to operate in the middle of nowhere for extended periods. Lieutenant McClain's first overseas assignment was Thailand where he trained members of the Thailand Army. From Thailand, he was deployed to Vietnam and to command an A-Team in Tay Ninh Province, about 75 miles Northwest from Saigon and 3 miles from the Cambodian border. The SF Camp at Thien Ngon was a specially designed fort in the shape of a 5 sided star perimeter and a hexagon interior. (Point of interest) FCOC member Tim Richards, commanded the Combat Engineer Company that cleared the land and constructed the SF Camp in 1968. The star shaped earthen walls are 6 ft. high and 6 ft. thick. The Vietnamese, who often brought their families, were able to build their homes in the thick walls. The star shape had no weak points for attack. Although CPT Richards lost five men KIA during the construction, CPT McClain stated that no Americans were KIA during his tour two years later. The purpose of the camp being so close to the border was to monitor enemy movement on the Ho Chi Minh Trail. This system of roads in Cambodia and Laos allowed the Viet Cong to move where Americans forces were not allowed to be.
